Surprised "victims" smile, frown, laugh, sit up, move closer, strain their eyes and scratch their heads (usually all within 3 minutes of meeting Sav). Countless audiences have portrayed Sav as a positive yet unassuming chap with a laid back, disarming manner. Over the past twenty years, Sav has studied and refined the ancient art of sleight of hand, combining it with his natural aptitude for beguiling people's minds.

An odd choice in career does have its advantages:

"I've been lucky enough to perform at some of the world's most ostentatious parties, where I've used my slightly devious powers to beguile and charm even the most robust of egos, quietly acknowledging that moments earlier I may have used the same secret on board a London bus to cheer up a miserable conductor. I've created many delightful and devious ruses, most of which have a entertaining twist. Why not give me the chance to whip the proverbial rug from beneath your feet?"

After all, I'm told that no-one minds being fooled by a nice chap!"

Sav has appeared and consulted numerous times on terrestrial TV (most recently starring in ITV's Astounding Celebrities) but he is best known for bemusing the clientele at London's premier celebrity haunts, performing as deceptionist-in-residence at Chinawhite, Milk & Honey, No. 5 and The Kingly Club.

Sav's many other engagements have ranged from an after-gig party for the Babyshambles to Esquire's 50 Sharpest Men party. His favorite gig to date was performing in Las Vegas for a bevy of bunny girls at the Miss Hawaiian Tropic Finals.
